Farewell Community Party

A farewell party, sponsored by the Community of Chinook was held in the School last Friday night in honor of those families who are leaving soon to make their homes elsewhere. The night was rather blizzardy, but there was a good turnout, there being approximately 150 present. Possibly one third more might have been present had the weather been more pleasant.

A short program was staged the following being the numbers:

- 1 Community Singing (with Messrs Langley and Robinson leaders)
- 2 Song by George Anderson
- 3 Dutch Dance, Jean Mortimer and Freda Milligan.
- 4 Recitation, Ray Cooley
- 5 Piano Solo, (and encore) Mrs. Turple, L. R. S. M.
- 6 Accordion Solo, Bernice Petersen
- 7 Recitation, Happy Milligan
- 8 Monologue, Mrs. L. Cooley

After the program, the chairs were put back against the wall and the centre of the floor left for games. Mr. Langley and Miss Madeline Otto were the committee in charge of this part of the program. Mr. Langley was director, and he made a thorough job of it, every one having an excellent time, young and old together playing the games or watching them.

A bounteous lunch was served by the Committee in charge, and then the guests of the evening were arranged in a circle, inside the large circle of community friends, while "Auld Lang Syne" was sung. As friendly hands grasped friendly hands, and the plaintive tune went on, one could see the tear in the eye of those who are bidding farewell to the fine community of Chinook (and there is none better) where most of the older members of these families have spent a quarter of a century.

A dance with the orchestra donating the music, provided a fine finish for an enjoyable evening. W. A. Tool acted as Chairman. During the evening, some of the old settlers of the district said a few words, voicing their regrets at leaving their old home town.

Messrs Geo. E. Aitken sr and George, junior arrived in town Thursday from Vancouver.

The Ladies' Card Club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Lee Hinters went to Mrs. Youell and Miss Gay Massey. Mrs. L. Cooley will be hostess next week.

Silent Barriers—Canadian Epic

Depicting one of the most important chapters in Canada's romantic early history, Silent Barriers, film epic of the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway through the Rocky Mountains, had its world premiere under the patronage of Her Majesty the Queen Mother and Mrs.

Stanley Baldwin in London, England, recently, and its Canadian premiere in Montreal. The picture, which will be shown in theatres across Canada in the near future, is based on Alan Sullivan's book, "The Great Divide", and recalls the tremendous struggle waged against Nature by the giants of pioneer railroading in Canada. The picture was made in the Canadian Rockies last summer. This Gaumont British production includes such stars as Richard Arlen, Barry Mackay, Antonette Collier, Lilli Palmer, and J. Farrell MacDonald, who relive the lives of pioneers who didn't know the meaning of the word "quit". The layout shows a scene from the picture, the arrival of a train at Moodyville. Last Lilli Palmer, one of the beautiful stars of the picture.

Hazards Of The Highway

In common with residents elsewhere, the people of the prairie provinces are subjected to seasonal dangers resulting in loss of life and property, the incidence and severity of which could frequently be appreciably mitigated with the exercise of more care.

In the winter months on account of severe climatic conditions on the prairies, lives are lost and property destroyed by fire. With the advent of spring when the exigencies of work and a long pent-up desire for outdoor pleasures beckon them into the open, people exchange the hazards of fire at home for the dangers of the highways and the byways. For six or seven months after the spring thaw, one expects to read almost daily of automobile crashes, in which one or more lives are lost and others taken to hospital with broken bones, severe gashes and contusions and shattered nerves. And yet nine times out of ten these catastrophes could have been avoided with the exercise of more care.

Until quite recently it was thought that a very substantial proportion of these accidents was due to defects in equipment, weak brakes, ineffective lights, tires in bad condition and the like. Recent analyses of causes of accident, as far as it is possible to determine causes, show, however, that a surprisingly small percentage of accidents is caused by defective equipment, despite the number of decrepit vehicles on the road and the neglect of many drivers to keep their cars and equipment in first class condition.

Experts have come to the conclusion as a result of experience and compilation of available data, therefore, that the human element is the greatest single factor in the appalling toll of life and limb on the highways and this can be translated into terms of carelessness or wilfulness.

In the latter category must be placed the driver who gets behind the wheel with liquor under his belt, the driver who insists on streaking across the landscape, hell bent for leather, in grim determination to beat his previous best, regardless of road and traffic conditions and the driver who crowds others perilously close to the ditch rather than keep his own side of the centre of the road. Perhaps to these should be added drivers with glaring headlights who neglect the common courtesy of dimming their lamps at the approach of oncoming cars in the opposite direction.

In other words, it is the consensus of opinion of many authorities, that a substantial proportion of the accidents which provide headlines for the daily papers are due to failure to practise the golden rule: "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you."

For such wilful disregard of the rights of other users of the common thoroughfare penalties can scarcely be too severe or regulations too stringent and greater recourse should be had to cancellation of licenses for offences subsequent to a first conviction. The slaughter of the innocents at the hands of offenders is too great to permit of leniency where wilfulness can be proved.

Not the least dangerous of these wilful offences is the practice of "hogging the road" and not the least of these offenders is the driver of the big and heavily laden commercial truck who straddles the crown of the road and refuses to yield an inch to meeting and overtaking vehicles. Not all drivers of these juggernauts, of course, are guilty of this offence, but sufficient complaints have been voiced against this practice during the past year or two, to establish evidence that too many truck drivers are using the highway without discretion and without regard for the comfort and safety of automobile drivers.

Governments can do much to reduce the risk of accident from this source by encouraging other drivers on the highway to report the license number of this class of offender and a series of reports against the same individual might well be taken as prima facie evidence of his guilt, which, no doubt, it would be.

Good citizens who themselves observe the decencies of the road and practice courtesy to others could do much to purge the highways of some of its terrors if they would report all cases of palpably wilful actions in violation of the rights of the motoring public.

Hazards of the highway would unquestionably be materially minimized if motor clubs and kindred organizations, in co-operation with the government, would enroll their membership as amateur custodians of the laws of the road and if every right-minded user of the highway would constitute himself a patrol to safeguard the interests of himself and his fellow men and their families.

Will End Air Fatalities

Aviation Official Sees Great Advance In Plane Safety

Advancement in aeronautical design will make it possible by 1939 to operate transport planes throughout the year without a single fatality, according to E. E. Breech, chairman of the board of North American Aviation.

Mr. Breech made his prediction before a group of airmen and executives of transport lines and aircraft manufacturing companies at a luncheon given in New York by the Advertising Club to honor Howard Hughes, transcontinental speed ace.

Mr. Hughes, wealthy sportsman pilot, spanned the continent on Jan. 19 in 7 hours, 28 minutes and 25 seconds. His average speed was 332 miles an hour or 51½ miles a minute. He said that it would be a hard battle with nature to accomplish greater speed.

On this point Mr. Hughes finished his speech, which had to do mainly with technical and other difficulties in rapid flight.

"I am glad Mr. Hughes deflated speed," Mr. Breech said. "Americans expect the impossible, and usually get it. But I am glad he told about the difficulties so that the public won't expect too much."

Mr. Breech noted that designers were concentrating their efforts on comfort, safety and quiet, rather than speed. In the designs for 1938, he said, "you will see comfort, not speed, representing the greatest advancement." Engineers also are placing great emphasis on the safety factor, he added.

Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, war ace and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, told the gathering it would not be long before airlines gave passengers "in comfort what you (Hughes) give them in speed." He said aviation to him now was a "parade of youth and we old-timers feel obsolete."

WORRIED BY PIMPLES AND ECZEMA

Complexion Unblemished After Six Weeks of Kruschen

"For the past two years," writes a woman, "my face was covered with hard pimples and red blotches, and I also had eczema on my forehead and arms. I tried lotions, creams and ointments, without the slightest result. I was so worried and uncomfortable I decided to give Kruschen a trial, and without any exaggeration, within six weeks my face was without a blemish, and I have not had a sign of eczema since. I take Kruschen regularly every morning, and would not be without it." (Mrs.) J. A. Pimples and eczema are frequently due to impurities in the blood—irregular poisons which sluggish body organs are failing to expel from the system. Kruschen Salts help to keep the body organs functioning normally and healthily, thus preventing the accumulation of impurities in the blood.

A Deadly Warplane

Holland Has One That Carries 1,000 Pounds Of Bombs

The most deadly of warplanes will be delivered shortly at Amsterdam, Holland, for the Royal Dutch Air Force. It is said that it will change radically the aviation world's ideas. It is called the Sythe and is the invention of Anthony Fokker. Looking like a sharp ended winged egg, it has two fuselages and carries 1,000 pounds of bombs. Instead of fast fighters, with short ranges, sent up at intervals to intercept a raid, squadrons of these machines can patrol at varying heights.

"I suffered agony from blinding headaches, indigestion and chronic constipation," says Mrs. C. Hutton, of Birmingham. "I tried everything without result until someone recommended Fruit-tives. You too, can find new health by taking Fruit-tives. It is the most effective of fruits and herbs and acts to cleanse the blood and purify the system, the elimination tract of wastes and poisons. It gives the blood the blood of life and health. Give Fruit-tives a trial today. On sale at all drug stores."

Canadian Legion

International Organization Of War Veterans To Promote Peace

The policy of the Canadian legion of exerting every effort toward promoting international harmony and world peace was given a practical turn in the announcement by Brig. General Alex. Ross, Dominion president, of a committee appointed to inquire into a new international organization of war veterans recently formed for a like purpose.

This committee comprises Major Milton F. Gregg, V.C., Dominion hon. treasurer; J. R. Bowler, general secretary; Lt.-Col. R. de la B. Girouard, and Captain W. W. Murray. Secretary is J. C. G. Herwig of Ottawa.

The organization which has attracted the attention of the legion is known as "the permanent international committee of ex-servicemen." At present it has representation from 41 countries, including former enemy nations as well as former allies.

It was established at the behest of the British legion last November at a conference in Rome.

In Their Proper Setting

Canadian Mounties Will Be Seen On Horseshack At Coronation

The famous Royal Canadian Mounted Police are going back to their mounts. At least the 35 who will represent this branch of the Dominion's law enforcement at the coronation of King George will take along their horses.

It was on their horses and in their scarlet tunics that the Mounted Police became known the world over for their efficiency, loyalty, bravery and resourcefulness. It is only in the movies that they so appear today. In real life as they go about their duties they travel in more modern public dismountation, in air plane, motorcycle or in boats. Only "once in a blue moon" are they seen on horseshack. For the coronation, however, they are to have their horses and those who see the coronation will view the Mounties in their proper setting. This is as Canadians wish. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Art Of Water Divining

Has Been Taken Up Enthusiastically By Army In India

Steadily increasing interest in the art of water-divining in Aberdeenshire, Banffshire and Kincardine has led to the formation of a North-East of Scotland group affiliated to the British Society of Dowsers. Enthusiasts gathered at Syvie Castle, Aberdeenshire, on the invitation of Sir Ian and Lady Forbes, Leth, and took part in a series of tests. These include locating and ascertaining the depth of an underground stream and well; selecting a bottle containing pure water from a collection of six bottles holding various liquids; identifying magnetized and non-magnetized steel; finding hidden coins of copper and silver, and locating the water pipe and electric cable which supply the castle.

Colonel Bell stated that the army in India had taken up the art of dowsing with great enthusiasm. In a recent engagement on the North-West Frontier a dowser was able to find water in a valley where it had never been known to exist before.—London Times.

THE YELLOW BRIAR

A Story of the Irish on the Canadian Countryside
By PATRICK SLATER

By arrangement with Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

Coming to Canada, these women continued to suffer and endure as their menfolk cut homesteads on these stony hillsides—but there was a touch of hope thrown in. And where there is hope, there is joy. One of the finest things Canada ever did was to put a kindly twinkle into the blue-grey eyes of these proud, poverty-stricken Irishwomen.

Their tongues may have been tart at times, but they wore their knuckles to the bone in the service of their love. The Scottish Presbyteries had been the salt of the earth in Upper Canada; but the Irish women gave it sweetness and light. These mothers of Methodist families were quiet, tidy, capable women; and it was a pleasure to watch one of them making ready an evening meal. They were whole-some-minded because they were home-lovers and were busy home-making. And among women, it is the home-keeping hearts that are happiest. The mother of a family was proud of her station as such; and, as a result, she was content to relax and drift quietly into the matron class. Her Irish eyes were smiling. One was not startled those days by seeing the worn eyes of an old woman looking out from a face made up to recall a youth that had fled. Has not every age of a woman's life a natural beauty of its own?

The bodies of these Irish women may have been stiff-necked with a curious family pride that had nothing much to justify it; but that very pride fortified their unconquerable wills and helped to keep their menfolk respectable. There was contentment in their hearts, a depth of love and loyalty; and like my old yellow briar, it burst into bloom at times.

... for her price is above rubies. She seeketh wool and flax and worketh willingly with her hands. . . . She stretcheth forth her hands to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hand to the needy. . . .

She stretcheth forth the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.

Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.

—The words of King Lemuel.

CHAPTER II.

It was early in the spring of 1847 that I first got to know that young girl's family, as I played around the Tavern Tyvone at Toronto. It is a long journey back, indeed, from life's "to the little boy at the starting of it."

My family were of the poor Irish. A sailing vessel, returning to Quebec for timber, that year called at an Irish port to load its decks, as cheap cargo, with ramshod and cracked casks, for their wild flights from the famine and the plague. Woe's me! Unspeakeable were the miseries of that long, tempest-tossed voyage in a filthy, fever-stricken ship. Half its human cargo were buried at sea; and as the vessel sailed past Father's Point, with its light of the St. Lawrence for miles behind were strewn with bedding tossed overboard by sailors making the decks ship-shape for port. As a flat scow was being towed slowly up the river near Prescott, my poor father was stricken down. He went under shallow earth quickly without benefit of clergy. My mother waited after the manner of Irish women, and counted her silver. It was a handful of coppers she had, with a few sixpenny bits and a shilling. A steamboat brought the widow Slater and her small son to Toronto. How fortunate it was she had only one child.

My mother took lodgings with Mr. Michael O'Hagan in a small frame house that still stands, in tottering decay, on the east side of York Street, a few doors down from Richmond Street. Our living quarters were upstairs in a small back bedroom, which we shared with a large family. She was only a slip of a girl, and she was one of them black Irish. You know what I mean? There was the mop of raven hair, the swarthy skin and a touch of down on the lip. Beyond the cruel, desolate countenance, there had been a sparkle of fun in her eyes, and the tongue of the laughing little baggage had been always on the wag. But the poor little Irish girl was fast disheartened now, with the outlandish ways of the crazy, new-world town, and sore afraid of its streets infested with protestants and nigger folk.

She was sick at heart; she was homesick for the earthen floor of a good cabin, with its friendly smell of burning turf and the sour butter-milk.

My mother got odd scrubbing jobs, day work like; and I ran about the street. A little lad of eight or nine years has some clear-cut impressions printed at that age on the tender, unscarred membranes of the brain; and they remain distinct and vivid to the end of his days. I got odd jobs myself, spitting kindling and doing chores in the morning for Mistress Kitty O'Shea, who lived in a little frame cottage where Shephards Lane now is. She was a folly, ruddy-faced little body with silver always in her pocket; and she had fashionable ladies lodging with her. On fine afternoons, Paddy Casey would come round with his open carriage and spanking pair. Mistress Kitty O'Shea and her stylish guests were driven slowly up and down King Street to see the sights and take the air. Of course, I did not understand the business at the time; but no doubt my friend Kitty wanted other folk to know the sort of house she was running.

In 1847, there was plenty going on in Toronto to fill a young lad's mind and keep his face agape. We had come from drippy Donegal where, in the little pockets and quarter-acre patches, "the pratties grow so small they have to eat them skins and all." Toronto seemed to be a stirring, big town; and things were in a constant commotion. Then, too, there were the public hangings. Adventure bunted into a fellow round any corner; and there was lots to eat.

Early Egyptian Ruler

Discovery Of Body By Archaeologist Shows He Was Beheaded

The first body of a noble belonging to the time of the first dynasty of Egypt has been discovered by a young British archaeologist, Walter Emery.

Mr. Emery found it while excavating at Sakkara, near the pyramid of Zoser. It has been identified as that of Sabu, governor of the province under King Azab, fifth ruler of the first dynasty.

The body, decapitated by ancient robbers, was found lying in the burial pit in the centre of a tomb which dates back to approximately 3400 B.C.

Beside the body was a unique vase resembling the steering wheel of a motor car and of about the same size.

The vase was shattered when found, but the fragments retrieved from the sand have been pieced together and sent to the museum at Cairo.

Created Winning Design

Woman Architect Will Decorate Bond Street For Coronation

A young woman, whose hobby is architecture, stood before 300 professional architects in London—and criticized their work. She was Mrs. Acland, wife of the M.P. for Barnstaple. She created the winning design for the decoration of Bond street, known to the world as the street in a contest open to all architects in the country.

Mrs. Acland told the architects that Bond street, known to the world as the "street of quality," was architecturally appalling, and that her Coronation scheme was intended to cover up its faults.

Her audience of men showed their agreement by cheering her.

Mrs. Acland first wanted to become an architect at the age of 12. She still "goes to school," and frequently works night and morning drafting plans. Her holidays are spent working in architects' offices.

Little Helps For This Week

Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. 2 Timothy 2:3.

Where our Captain bids us go, 'Tis not ours to murmur 'No.' He that gives the sword and shield, Chooses too the battle-field On which we fight the foe.

We cannot be sure of anything than this: that if we cannot sanctify our present lot we could sanctify no other. Our heaven and our Almighty Father are there, or nowhere. The obstructions of our lot are given us to fight away its gloom, its mysteries are for our worship, and its temptations for our faith. Soldiers of the cross, it is not for us, but for our Leader and our Lord, to choose the field, and it is ours to take the station which he assigns and make it the field of truth and honor, even if it be the field of death.

Has Never Seen Movie

Woman Of 86 Got The Idea They Were All Terrifying

Eighty-six years of age and has never seen a moving picture nor been in a theatre. That is the record of Mrs. Mary Eleanor Elliott Johnston, Godrich, Ontario, who has just quietly passed the 86th milestone of her life at her home on Britannia road.

"What is it they call them?" The ladies? "I never quite got up nerve enough to go," apologized this active and alert "grand-mame." Her daughter, with whom she lives, went to a show once and saw a picture of a man being killed. That was enough.

The press, so often accused of being bought, often wonders why the money doesn't arrive.

Some Scotsmen have real generous impulses. Take for example, the Scotsman who was attracted by one of the Siamese twins. He sidled up to the twin who took his fancy and whispered: "If you can get away for a little while, I'll buy you a drink."

Silk underwear is now compulsory for both sexes in Germany; this aims at releasing the imported cotton for other purposes.

CELEBRATE 79th BIRTHDAY

A number of the Chinook people paid a surprise visit Saturday night to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Berry to help Mrs. Berry celebrate her 79th birthday.

After a few games of dominoes at which the hostess as usual, proved the champion, a bounteous lunch was served. The table was centred with a lovely birthday cake, being baked by Mrs. Robinson. After lunch the hostess was presented with a lovely towel and face cloth set with the best wishes of the company.

REARVILLE NEWS

Those in the vicinity of Myrtle School gathered at the school the afternoon of March 17 in honor of the children and parents who are to leave shortly for other locations.

In the early part of the afternoon the Stayers played the Leavers five innings of Softball and were beaten by a good margin.

Later trum whist was played with Miss Lillian Seeger and Mr. Harold Allen the winners. In a childrens competition the winners were Josephine and Wilfred Jackson.

After lunch was served a few songs were given by Misses Allen, Little, Maurer and Rasmussen. The best wishes from the community were then offered by Miss Marquette Little on behalf of the school and by Mr. C. B. Little on behalf of the adults. The gathering then broke up as the strains of Auld Lang Syne died away.

Birthday Party and Shower

A farewell dinner party in honor of Miss Audrey Rideout was held Wednesday evening at Mrs. Turple's home. The occasion was Audrey's sixteenth birthday and she and the other girls of Mrs. Turple's Sunday School class were the guests.

Games were enjoyed and singing was also a feature of the evening. Several contests were entered into with enthusiasm.

A lovely birthday cake which contained a favor for each guest, centred the dinner table and the fortune telling that followed caused great merriment. A handkerchief holder for the honored guest which took the form of a treasure hunt brought the party to a close, "aps" being sung.
